Yehoshua states in John 14:6 that no one comes to the Father, except through Him. For Christians in general, that's enough to consider every other religion to be false; but the Bible never states that it's required to believe in Him to gain access to the Father. If I want to go to live in any country in the world but I don't believe that any authorities exist there, does that mean that I can just go there? No, will need permission first. In other words, I will need to immigrate to be naturalized. Whether I believe in the immigration authorities or not is irrelevant. Apostle John makes clear in John 1 that Yehoshua was the incarnation of the Logos, who is the soul that governs the law and order of creation¹. Various religions have a name for the Logos or what it represents. For example, "maat" in the Egyptian religion², "dharma" in Buddhism, "asha" in Zoroastrianism, and so on. Whatever you call Him or it, for as long as you follow Him or it, you are in the process of heavenly naturalization.
